Welcome to the Dental World 2014 exhibition!

We would like to offer some recommendations for: where to go, where to eat or what to visit during your stay in Budapest. Budapest is a safe, nice city with inhabitants famous of their hospitality and we have many to offer you both in terms of sights and experience.

This time of the year, the Indian Summer or as we call it Old Ladies Summer is maybe the best time to visit our beautiful city – if you lucky enough to get some sun during your stay.

We have collected some useful information for you during your stay:

Where to eat?

Basic principles:
– Try to find places to eat where the locals go.
– Do not go to restaurants which have staff to bring you in. If there are people standing in front of the building and trying to invite you, simply move along.
– Avoid restaurants which are empty at lunch and dinner time.
– Try to use a travel guide like Lonely Planet to find decent places.

Y café and Restaurant, XIV. Stefánia ut 1
The closest to the Dental World ‘12 its atmosphere reflects the combination of a bar and a lounge, and it is one of the best meeting places. The menu and the food cover the great variety of international cuisine, the classic Hungarian meals and the continuously changing fresh offers.

Finkás Coffee Restaurant
XIV. Tátra utca 18
An excellent restaurant with real Budapest atmosphere, near to Danube. One of the ten best Hungarian restaurants, where the bar-pianist competition winner plays in the evening.

Fadlő. V. Váci utca 67, which serves massive Hungarian meals on wooden platters.
Typical Hungarian meals are served at the ArtDé, V. Kecskeméti utca 4 (metro: Kávölgy tér). One of the oldest and most reliable restaurant of Budapest.

Vegetarián, V. Cukor utca 3
Just off Ferenciek tere (noon to 10 p.m. daily), is a full-service vegetarian restaurant with a comprehensive English menu that includes some macrobiotic items.

Café Dérnyé, I. Krisztina tér 3
One of the most charming cafés/restos in Budapest.
An ideal place after work or to sit in after or before a walk up/down the Castle hill to the Royal Palace.
If you’re not discouraged by the prospect of spending something like 5000 Ft per person for dinner, Gundel, next to the Zoo directly behind the Museum of Fine Arts at XIV Allakertje ut 2 (metro: Széchenyi fürdő), is probably Budapest’s fanciest restaurant, with a tradition dating back to 1894, Bagoly-vár, Gundel’s little sister next door.

Which bath to go?
The closest bath to the Dental World 2012 is the Széchenyi Spa, a large hot water bathhouse in the main city park. The two other large spas are the Gellért, a very exclusive Art Nouveau facility near the river or the Lukács, also on the Buda side of the town.

Buda side of the town. If you prefer to go to Turkish baths, try out the Rudas or Király spas.

Public transport
If you are planning to use the mass transit a lot, we recommend you to get a Budapest card. This will allow you free transportation for 3 or 5 days and offer slight discounts in many of the cities museums, restaurants and spas. These cards can be bought at the ticket offices of the underground system.

We are mostly waiting in frequented branches of the Budapest Opera or around night clubs. Normally a ride should cost around 0.90 Euro/ km inside the city limits.

Always go to the same company, ask our staff to help you find these companies.
– Citytaxi: +36-1-1111 – Taxi partner
– Citytaxi: +36-1-333-333
– Citytaxi: +36-1-333-2222
From mobiles call +36-1-number

Some unmarked, unlicensed cab drivers may ask 100-200 or even more Euro for a single ride. They are mostly waiting in frequented branches of the Budapest Opera or around night clubs. Normally a ride should cost around 0.90 Euro/ km inside the city limits.

We recommend taking the services of some of the sightseeing companies who offer tours in the city. What you should definitely not miss is the Castle and the downtown. If you have the opportunity try to catch the sunset during a river cruise – one of the most spectacul- lar sight our city can offer.

Budapest is celebrating contemporary art in October. The exhibition of the 85-year-old Arnulf Rainer, who is one of the most significant Austrian painters nowadays can be visited in the National Art Gallery, as one of the highlights of the events. The CAFe Budapest Contemporary Art Festival is offering a wide range of events, such as classical and popular music, dance, theatre and graphic art programs can be currently visited. The Hungarian National Opera showcases the play “Cosi fan tutte” on 20 October and on 18 October the play “Falstaff” on 17 October.

The opera play called Lady Sarashina can be seen in Liszt Ferenc Academy of Music on Friday, and the program of contemporary art called Voices of Sapporo – tickets can be purchased for free of charge on the spot is presented on Saturday. For more information on the programs please visit cafebudapestartfest.hu

A must-see in Budapest is the so-called ruin pubs and the popular room escape games, where you can make a successful exit within an hour by solving puzzles, logical and ability games. Fogaš, Kerület 6 (1073, Akácfa u. 493) welcomes groups of 2-5 people with English speaking guide and with 3 different routes. Appointments for the same day can be reserved only by phone. (20/3735-055) Dan Snaitl, or better known as Carlos, who is a psychadelic-instrumental electronic artist introduces his new record at the A38 ship located at the Buda-side of the Danube, on the 26th October.

The A38 ship also has an excellent restaurant and its pub was voted as the best pub in the world in the ranking created by Lonely Planet.
