Meet today’s DTSC speakers
Get the inside scoop on today’s sessions and the speakers behind them.
»starting from page 10

Scenes from Sunday
Cocktails, Aztecs and people getting educated are just a few of the sights seen around the Greater New York Dental Meeting.
»starting from page 6

Stock up on GNYDM gifts for everyone
Don’t leave New York empty handed. Take home a GNYDM-themed mug, pen or more.
»page 40

Here at the 2010 Greater New York Dental Meeting (GNYDM), dental professionals are able to scope out aisle after aisle of new products, supplies and equipment.

And just like news reports of increased consumer traffic in brick-and-mortar retailers over the all-important post-Thanksgiving “Black Friday” weekend, signs here at the Jacob K. Javits Center point to a strong business climate.

On Sunday, opening day of business for the 2010 meeting, the show floor was packed. The goal, of course, is for dental professionals to bring back to their practices new tools that will Let’s go shopping!

Learn, baby, learn
By Robin Goodman, DT Group Editor

Whatever you’re looking for in the didactic realm of dentistry, you will find it here at the Greater New York Dental Meeting.

*see LEARN, page 22

Dr. Douglas Terry, left, and his dental assistant, Melissa Nix, prepare his lecture on ‘Anterior Fiber-Reinforced Composite Resin Bridge’ at the Live Dentistry Arena No. 1 on Sunday morning.

Attendees crowd the aisles of the 86th annual New York meeting. (Photos/Fred Michmershuizen, DT Editor)