Here to learn

By Fred Michmershuizen, today Staff

The Academy of General Dentistry is known for education tailored to your needs, which is good because those gathered here at the Hyatt Regency in New Orleans – site of AGD2018 – have come to learn.

Educational offerings include a wide range of courses, learning labs, poster presentations, “The 360 Experience,” a “Wine” down with the experts and much more. Presenters include some of dentistry’s most notable speakers.

During his keynote address on Thursday morning, Dennis P. Tarnow, DDS, presented “Where we were, where we are, where we are going ... how exciting!” It was an inspiring talk.

Attend the Convocation Ceremony and Celebration

By AGD Staff

The AGD Convocation Celebration will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday at the Hyatt Regency New Orleans. Everyone is invited to honor the accomplishments of AGD’s 2018 fellows, masters and lifelong learning and service recognition (LLSR) award recipients. Seating is available on a first-come, first-served basis. Doors open for guest seating at 2:15 p.m.

This year, the AGD will give the fellowship award to 272 dentists. The fellowship award is presented to dentists who seek to provide the highest quality of dental care by remaining current in their profession. To receive this honor, dentists must complete 500 hours of continuing dental education, pass a comprehensive exam and fulfill three years of continuous membership in the AGD.

An additional 69 dentists will receive AGD’s mastership award. To receive this honor, dentists must earn their fellowship award and complete an additional 1,100 hours of continuing dental education. Dentists who have earned fellowship or mastership from AGD make up a distinct group – they represent less than 1 percent of all general dentists practicing in the United States and Canada.

Finally, 32 dentists will receive LLSR award, which is formal recognition for AGD masters in the areas of continuing education, dental-related that examined the trajectory of the dental profession over the years.

A bit later Thursday morning, Tarnow also presented “Interdisciplinary approach for treating the esthetically compromised patient.” After this session got out, Richard Knowlton, DMD, MAGD, of Elizabeth-town, Pa., and Ryan Buehner, DMD, of Hummelstown, Pa., paused to say how much they enjoyed the presentation. They said they came to the AGD meeting each year because the smaller, less-hectic nature of the event is more conducive to learning.

In addition to learning, AGD also offers plenty of technology. In the exhibit hall, meeting attendees have the opportunity to view some of the industry’s newest and most innovative products and services.

At Planmeca (booth No. 314), you can learn more about the Planmeca Emerald Next-Gen Intraoral Scanner, which is an ultra-lightweight, ergonomically designed digital scanner that quickly delivers images with superior accuracy and detail. According to the company, the Planmeca Emerald produces images with a vibrant color palette for realistic digital impressions that allow dentists to distinguish between hard and soft tissue, the company said.

New from Medidenta (booth No. 607) is the Foresight 45 self-embolizing LED surgical handpiece, for use in surgery, periodontal and endodontic procedures.

According to the company, the Foresight 45 incorporates an air-driven generator to power a bright LED light directly into the surgical pocket, illuminating the operative field without the need for fiber optic systems from a delivery unit. The Foresight 45 eliminates the need for multiple components, providing a single-piece solution to your lighting needs with a standard four-hole back-end handpiece, according to Medidenta.

In addition, the Foresight 45 does not allow any air to escape into the oral cavity. All of the excess air is funneled to the backend of the handpiece, eliminating all possibilities of an air embolism. This ensures an air-free oral cavity, allowing for multiple surgeries in succession while still maintaining patient safety, according to the company.
