Friday Rock, or Fredagsrock as the locals call it, has proven to be a successful music event that takes place at Tivoli Gardens. From April until September 2018, international and national acts will perform on Friday nights at Denmark’s most popular amusement park and pleasure garden, located right in the city centre. Danish singer Christopher—whose talent has catapulted him into Danish pop stardom—will be kicking off the concert series on 13 April. He is mostly known for his catchy R&B songs, such as “Limousine”, “Tulips” and “CPH Girls”.

With a vast range of collections, the National Museum of Denmark in Copenhagen covers over 14,000 years of Danish history and, therefore, is the largest museum of cultural history in the country. In the large section on Danish prehistory, visitors can, for example, learn about famous finds such as the Egtved Girl, the Trundholm Sun Chariot, the Gudme Ship and the Huldremose Woman. Visitors can also read more about the Danish Middle Ages and the stylish Renaissance period. Another section deals with the turbulent period of German occupation during World War II. Collections such as the famous ethnographic exhibition can be viewed as well.

Discover Copenhagen by bike
Opening times: Check local services for tours | Self-service docking points are usually open 24 hours

With the weather improving, bike season is fast approaching. Especially after a long day of being indoors at SCANDEFA, a cycling tour is the perfect opportunity to unwind and see the main sights of Copenhagen in a few hours—very handy if the time here is limited. As a bike-friendly city, Copenhagen offers many guided tours, as well as self-service cycle hire stations. Some popular cycling destinations include the Nyhavn (seventeenth-century waterfront, canal and entertainment district), the botanical garden and Strøget shopping street in the heart of Copenhagen.
